St. Florian School News

St. Florian offers classes for grades PreK through 8th. Classes are small, so individualized attention can be given to students. We offer half day and full day preschool for 3 and 4 year olds. Students receive instruction in computers, Physical Education and Music in addition to the regular curriculum. Extended day care before and after school is available for working families. We have a very successful athletic program for both boys and girls. They can be involved in basketball, volleyball and cheerleading. Tuition assistance is available. View our website at <http://stflorianschool.org>.

Mission Statement of St. Florian School

Our mission is to provide each student with a Catholic education in all areas. The faculty and school families join the parish staff and fellow parishioners to form a living Catholic faith community. Our school population is multicultural and fosters sensitivity to the needs of all. We promote the students' burning desire for learning. Through education, service, support, formation and challenge, the students are called to realize their potential spiritually, socially, and intellectually. For one hundred years our school has been committed to carry out the Gospel values of Jesus Christ on a daily basis.

HEARING SCRIPTURE

by Paul Turner

Imagine you're with a group of friends swapping stories about recent trips. But each of you brings a written copy for everyone else. When it's your turn, you don't tell the story while everyone listens. Instead, everybody pulls out your written account and reads along with you while you speak. Sound like fun? Sorry, that's not how we tell stories.

Listening is an art as rich as reading. We still do it in classrooms, seminars, phone conversations, and the living room. Lively interaction between speaker and listener means the speaker proclaims ideas and the listener gives attention. In that low-tech communication, human beings connect.

The proclamation of Scripture recaptures the age-old art of speaking and listening. God's presence appears in the assembly as Word. In actively listening to the Word of God, as we naturally do in conversation, we open our hearts to wonder. Technology has made the mass production of written materials more available now than ever. With little effort, Scripture readings can be placed in the hands of every worshipper. Advocates of this practice say it permits the worshipper to use sight, not just hearing. However, it's like having everyone read your trip story while you tell it. It can let the air out. The event requires both the proclamation of the reader and the eagerness of listeners. Hearing the Word together bonds and expresses our community. If everyone reads the text silently, we become individuals again, with noses in our laps and faces turned down from one another.

We'll hear the Word of God with better attention if we prepare. Worshipers can read the texts prior to coming to Mass and pray over them throughout the week before. We may also discuss them with family and friends. Then our ears will be open to listen attentively to the Word of God. All eyes will be fixed on the one who reads. And our hearts will be joined as one body of believers. When the divine Word resounds in our assembly - heads up! And listen.

CAPITAL LETTERS

By Paul Turner

People will never hear one of the revisions to the words of the Mass. In the revised translation, new rules for capitalization have been applied. These sometimes look puzzling on the page, but the style should be more consistent.

For example, wherever capital letters appear in Latin, they also appear in English. This is why such words as "Angels" and "Saints" have changed their appearance. However, other words have been capitalized in English, even though they retain a lower case in Latin, such as "Bishop," "Priest," and "Deacon." The word "cross" is capitalized when it refers to the instrument of the death of Jesus, but is kept lower case otherwise. The same is true of the word "resurrection." For example, the third memorial acclamation, addressing our Savior, says, "by your Cross and Resurrection, you have set us free." However, the rubrics refer to the "cross" that is carried in procession at the beginning of Mass.

Some people are surprised that pronouns referring to the divinity are not capitalized. Some publications use capitals for words such as "He," "His," and "Him" when referring to God. The missal does not. It has, for example, "Through him, and with him, and in him," when alluding to Christ at the end of every Eucharistic prayer. This remains the case in the present translation. The capitalization of so many pronouns would have made the editing and reading of the book more difficult.

The rules for capitalization in English are established not by the translators or by the conferences of bishops. The Vatican established these in its rulebook for translators. Sometimes the reason for a capital letter is hard to discern; other times it seems obvious. Capitals are meant to illumine the text, not to distract people, who won't hear them anyway.

Paul Turner is pastor of St. Anthony Parish in Kansas City, Mo. A priest of the diocese of Kansas City-St. Joseph, he holds a doctorate in sacred theology from Sant' Anselmo in Rome.
